Adam Freihoefer,

Dear Mr. Freihoefer,

While we all recognize the potential economic benefits of Foxconn, it is important that Wisconsin abide by the Great Lakes Compact. Think how we would react if Illinois or Indiana or Michigan were setting up a new company like this and did not provide sufficient information about the quality of the water return. Or Canada. We would be screaming.

Wisconsin has a long tradition of protecting natural resources and waterways, led by good science and by a DNR that is above political squabbling. Let's reach back into our heritage before Scott Walker and use the strengths of our laws and water quality expertise to minimize the negative environmental impact of Foxconn in Wisconsin.

Thank you for your consideration.
