From:	James EarthLink.net
To:	DNR Racine Diversion Comments
Subject:	Foxconn water consumption
Date:	Friday, March 09, 2018 2:18:33 PM

It appears that the consumption of water results in 4 MM GPD being evaporated for process cooling via cooling towers. (Or perhaps combined Evap and Blowdown) There is available technology for capturing this water thus producing copious amounts of high purity water that could be recycled or repurposed. Such an approach would bring kudos to regulators and industry as well as other opportunities for the region as innovators in the wise use of precious water supplies whether from Great Lakes or even from brackish water sources.

James Van Camp
Emergent Water Solutions
630-805-1068

Sent from my iPad