Subject:	FoxConn Application for Seven Million Gallons of Water a Day

I live in the Great Lakes region and my drinking water comes from Lake Michigan. I am vehemently opposed to approval of the Foxconn application to use 7 million gallons of lake water per day.

With climate change upon us, I think it is shortsighted and foolhardy to squander the precious resource of water for corporate use as ground water sources and precipitation become less predictable in many parts of the country. Additionally, I am extremely concerned about the likelihood of contamination of the water and the adequacy of treatment before it is returned to the lake. The fresh water of the Great Lakes is too vital an asset to put at risk for the benefit of a few.

Millions of people across multiple states rely on Lake Michigan water. Wisconsin has no right to unilaterally divert and risk contamination of our drinking water. I think the Foxconn application for 7 million gallons of water per day from Lake Michigan should be REJECTED.

Thank you very much.
