Subject:	Ultimate effects resulting from the diversion of Lake Michigan water--FOXCONN

To whom it may concern:

To keep the proverbial horse before the cart, as a community constituent, I would FIRST like to garner assurances that the Foxconn industrial byproducts, e.g., metals, etc., be identified vis-à-vis their potential related deleterious environmental impact. In other words, the good diverted water once utilized by Foxconn will remain unaffected as it flows outward from the facility?

While there are positive aspects to the advent of this company in terms of jobs, etc., it would behoove persons of intelligence and conscience to view potential trade-offs.

Thank you,
