To whom it may concern-

I read the DNR report on Waukesha's diversion, in which it was suggested than the return flow could be delivered through the Root River in Racine. This report was obviously not prepared by a competent water quality specialist concerned about water quality in Racine or its harbor. As I understand it, this proposal has since been altered so that return flow will be through MMSD. My question now is, will the newest diversion proposal be prepared by the same people, with the same disregard for the city and people of Racine? I hope not.
