From:	Cassie Rincon
To:	DNR Racine Diversion Comments
Subject:	Lake Michigan water usage
Date:	Wednesday, March 14, 2018 10:17:45 PM

Letting Foxconn utilize 7 million gallons of water a day with a return rate of 60% is a bad idea. Not only is this bad for the species that inhabit or utilize the lake, but it also opens a door for other corporations to utilize large amounts of water from the lake. If one company is allowed to take advantage of this resource that is meant for the people, plants, and animals that surround and inhabit it, then all other companies will have a way in, and once all of these companies are allowed to remove water, the amount removed will be such a high rate that the natural flow of things will be ruined for not just this generation, but for the generations to come.

Deny Foxconn the use of our lake. It is a valuable resource and this is abusing that resource.

Cassandra Rincon