The permit to divert water by a "straddling community" for Foxconn should be denied. In this case, exceptions to the Great Lakes Water Compact should be used for municipal uses only, not large businesses who could locate in other watersheds. This should have been considered BEFORE our state signed the contract with this Taiwanese company. Water is a precious resource, and the quantity of water they will need on a daily basis is not a wise use of our water. By your training, you all at the DNR know this. You are charged first and foremost with the protection of our natural resources for generations to come. Do what you know is right, and deny this request by Foxconn.
