As a citizen of Wisconsin and user of water from Lake Michigan, I would would think the DNR would see that the diversion of Lake Michigan water to the international corporation Foxconn is a terrible idea for the people of Wisconsin and all people within the Great Lakes Basin. Diversion of water from the lakes is not meant for private corporations. Foxconn is located outside the basin area and will be using an excessive amount of water with minimal benefit to society and our environment. We must protect our water for future generations. Stop this from moving forward.
