The WI DNR has opened the public comment period regarding the diversion of 7 million gallons per day of Lake Michigan water. The water will flow through Racine to Foxconn, the Taiwanese electronics company.

2,000,000 Wisconsin citizens believe that water is a public trust, not to be given away to private interests.

We do not want multinational corporations siphoning our most valuable resource. Stop this diversion before it starts, look for smarter ways to manage FoxConn's water needs, and make them pay for the study.
