To Whom It May Concern,

I am not in favor of Foxconn, a foreign company, taking and using 7 million gallons of water a day from Lake Michigan. The company will make huge profits, which will mostly benefit its top management and its shareholders. Instead, if a private company uses any of the United States' resources, I think all U.S. citizens should benefit monetarily from that use. In other words, all U.S. citizens should receive a stipend for allowing a company use of our resources.
